

International Visitor Leadership Program

The International Visitor Leadership Program (IVLP) is a professional exchange program funded by the U.S. Department of State's Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs. The mission of IVLP is to offer current and emerging international leaders the opportunity to experience the richness and diversity of American political, economic, social and cultural life through carefully designed exchanges that reflect participants' professional interests and the public diplomacy objectives of the United States government.

The exchange brings up to 5,000 professional emerging leaders from around the world to the United States each year for programs of up to three weeks. The program is nomination only by staff at U.S. Embassies.^[1]

History

In 1940, Nelson Rockefeller was named the Coordinator of Commercial and Cultural Affairs for the American Republics. He initiated the exchange of persons program with Latin America, inviting 130 Latin American journalists to the United States and recognized as the first exchange under what would become the IVLP. In 1948 representative Karl E. Mundt and Senator H. Alexander Smith marshaled the Informational and Educational Exchange Act, also known as the Smith-Mundt Act which was passed by the 80th United States Congress and approved by President Harry S. Truman. During a time when Americans grew increasingly concerned about Soviet propaganda, the purpose of the Smith-Mundt was "to promote a better understanding of the United States in other countries, and to increase mutual understanding between the people of the United States and the people of other countries" though educational and cultural exchanges. From this legislation birthed the Foreign Leaders Program, which was eventually consolidated into the International Visitor Program (IVP) in 1952. In 2004, the IVP was renamed the International Visitor Leadership Program (IVLP).^{[2][3]}

Goals

The purpose of the IVLP is to:

1. cultivate lasting relationships between current and emerging professionals around the world and their American counterparts
2. provides opportunities for foreign opinion makers to gain firsthand knowledge about U.S. society, culture and politics^[4]

Program International Visitor Leadership (IVLP)

Program International Visitor Leadership (IVLP) jest najlepszym programem wymiany Departamentu Stanu USA dla profesjonalistów. Podczas krótkiego, ale bardzo intensywnego pobytu w USA obecni i przyszli liderzy z różnych dyscyplin spotykają się ze swoimi amerykańskimi odpowiednikami – specjalistami w tej samej dziedzinie. Odbywają wizyty w amerykańskich publicznych i prywatnych organizacjach związanych z tematyką programu. Poznają kulturę i know-how USA i nawiązują trwałe kontakty z Amerykanami. Tematyka spotkań odzwierciedla zainteresowania uczestników i cele polityki zagranicznej Stanów Zjednoczonych.

Co roku w ramach IVLP odwiedza USA niemal 5 tysięcy uczestników z całego świata. Od uruchomienia programu w 1940 r. było ich ponad 200 tysięcy, w tym 335 obecnych lub byłych szefów rządów.

O udział w IVLP nie można się ubiegać. Uczestników nominują i wybierają dyplomaci z ambasad amerykańskich na całym świecie. Doświadczenie IVLP jest często bardzo istotnym momentem w karierze uczestników. Nierzadko pełnią oni później istotne role w polityce, gospodarce, kulturze, nauce, sektorze pozarządowym. W Polsce, w IVLP uczestniczyli m.in. byli premierzy Donald Tusk i Beata Szydło oraz były prezydent Bronisław Komorowski.

Spośród wszystkich programów wymiany finansowanych przez rząd USA, właśnie w IVLP wzięło udział najwięcej Polaków: ponad 2 600 osób.
